Hail, guest, we ask not what thou art:
If friend, we greet thee, hand and heart:
If stranger, such no longer be:
If foe, our love shall conquer thee.

FAR from the turmoil of the city—yet part of it—Forest Hills Inn abounds in pleasures which are healthful to both body and mind.

If you are a busy man or woman, who must spend the day in town, Forest Hills is ideal for rest and recreation after the day's work is done. No farther from Penn Sta-

In twenty-five, you may reach Fifty-ninth Street; in thirty minutes, you are in Wall Street. The theaters, the shops, your place of business—all are within half an hour of your home at the Inn! For convenience of location, Forest Hills, with its multitude of appealing attractions, has no peer.

SLEEPING rooms are arranged either singly or en suite, with or without private bath and connecting living room. Every room is outside, is lighted by electricity, has running water and a long distance telephone service. Home-like arrangement and comfortable furnishings prevail here as elsewhere.

The children, too, in their little world are well taken care of with interesting and captivating games particularly for them. Specially prepared food is supplied.

For their elders, there is a concert on Sunday evenings, a dance on Saturdays, and entertainments of various kinds throughout the week.

Our Christmas tree and the accompanying festivities draw visitors from nearby towns. Christmas being essentially a children's holiday, the management makes an especial effort to keep the kiddies amused by providing an entertainment that always draws from them shouts of delighted approval.

AMUSEMENTS at Forest Hills Inn are almost too numerous to name. All the legal holidays—Christmas, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving, and the rest—are each celebrated in becoming fashion. There is a high-class motion picture house close to the hotel, and the bathing beaches are only a short ride by motor.

There is a fully equipped garage close to the hotel.

Our rates, on the American plan, considering the accommodations and cuisine, and the charming surroundings, are extremely moderate. Your inquiry for reservations, or for further information, will be promptly and cheerfully answered.

FURTHERMORE, the swiftly moving steel cars, heated, lighted, and run by electricity, are so commodious that you are seldom, if ever, required to stand. There is no other section of the city to which you may journey with the same comfort and speed.

A frequently tasted luxury, if you desire it, is to come home from the theater by taxi. The run is made in twenty-five minutes, for about $2.50.

Home Comforts

The Music Room

FOREST HILLS, home of the West Side Tennis Club, is the country's tennis center. For those who play this popular game and yet are not members of the West Side Club, the Inn provides courts of its own.

Nearby, in Forest Park, the golfer finds excellent links, together with a comfortable club-house and ample locker-room. In this park, which is a wooded tract of more than five hundred acres, there are also many charming walks and interesting drives.

Horseback riding, second only to tennis and golf in popularity, may be thoroughly enjoyed at Forest Hills. An abundance of well-trained saddle-horses is available at all times.

Forest Hills Inn—An All-the-Year

OUR English Tea Garden is a most attractive spot. Here, under the open sky, in the afternoons and on summer evenings, there are always many jolly parties.

It takes but a glance to see that they are thoroly enjoying their surroundings, as well as each other's company.

THE moment you enter the Inn, you are impressed with its home-like appearance; though realizing that this might indeed have been expected from the refined, appealing exterior. The building is fireproof, and is not of the ordinary commercial type. It is uncommon and attractive, both in design and color.

The Blue Room

THE public parlors open into each other in such a delightful, informal way that an attractive vista lies always before you, whichever way you go. Furthermore, these rooms are so spacious that, tho the Inn accommodates four hundred persons, there is always place for cozy tete-a-tetes and quiet spots where you may read or write.

The Lounge

The Parlor

There is a charming livableness about our blue room, lounge, and parlor, which is sure to win your pleased approval. The furnishings have been chosen with thought only for comfort and harmony. In the evenings and on rainy days, you will find them especially restful and appealing.

Forest Hills Inn

The actual work is proceeding and will be done as rapidly as possible. As the job is so big, it will take longer than we like, but every safeguard will be provided for a minimum of inconvenience for our guests.

Outside, the Inn will remain largely unchanged, of course — in strict concurrence with the regulations of the Forest Hills Gardens Corporation, which very wisely controls the visible beauty and symmetry of our community. Maintenance needs will be carefully and promptly cared for. The chimes in the tower have been restored and they again add a pleasant old-world sound to our neighborhood. Likewise, the central tower has been flood-lighted, adding dramatic quality to the beauty of the Inn's lovely architectural lines.

With plans of this magnitude, naturally, you say to yourself, how is this going to effect prices at the Inn? Our answer in this respect is in line with all our previous statements, First, we all know that in order for the Inn to continue to live — its facilities must be used. We are going to keep paramount in our policy of prices that value received will always exceed the amount charged. Hence, the more you avail yourselves of these services, the better we can keep prices to a minimum.

Resolved then that we, the new owners, ask your indulgence and cooperation during this alteration period and to a greater extent upon its completion. We in turn will continue to work with you toward everything that is in the best interest of our lovely home community.

A Statement of Intention by the new owners of the
FOREST HILLS INN

WHEN the Russell Sage Foundation, a generation ago, projected the village of Forest Hills Gardens as a practical demonstration of what gracious suburban living in America could really become, they chose to erect the Forest Hills Inn as a symbol and central focus of the development, around a square alongside of what was at the time a rural railroad station.

The march of time has seen our little community grow into what would be a large city elsewhere in America . . . and yet the Inn and The Gardens remain largely unchanged, sustaining the character of what is beyond question the finest suburban residential area within the city. In the opinion of many, Forest Hills is the only really completely controlled and planned suburban development in America today.

Naturally, everyone desires that Forest Hills shall remain as its early pioneers planned it. And so, when the Sage Foundation decided recently to sell The Inn to new owners, much concern was felt and many questions were raised.

Not only in community affairs, but in the world at large, rumor flourishes in the absence of facts. When the facts are known rumor and gossip disappear. It is the purpose of the new owners in this statement to give the people the facts about the new ownership of The Inn and their plans for its future. Apology is made for the delay — necessary only in order that the huge job of planning could match the challenge of the opportunity The Inn presents, and foster the rich tradition that is Forest Hills' birthright.

We, as the new owners, are well aware of the intangible assets we acquired with The Inn; and we put upon them a higher value than the bricks and mortar of which The Inn is built. The esteem and good-will of our residents and neighbors are more important to the success of the whole operation than any efforts of our own. We propose to earn and deserve that respect.

We want our friends to think of The Inn not as a hotel but as a home where gracious living reigns. We want our neighbors to think of it as an adjunct to their own homes — a place where they will want their visitors to stay, secure in the knowledge of a congenial company of friendly folks with similar tastes. We want the families of Forest Hills to use our restaurant facilities as their dining room away from home, where effortless entertainment can be just as gracious as it is within their own walls.

Many things are being done by the new owners to achieve all this. The kitchen staff has been revitalized, with new chefs to tempt your appetite with the best foods the markets afford, deliciously prepared. A new maitre d'hotel will assure the extra niceties of style in the serving of food which add so much to the enjoyment of food away from home. And a new manager, with the right experience, will inspire the regular staff of loyal, friendly servants to new efforts in their desire to serve and please.

Physically, too, the interior of The Inn will soon have a new face to show. Buildings, like people, tend to grow tired and old when neglected. Fortunately, there are preventives, which those who really care can employ, to keep our buildings fresh and young and modern.

Inspired by the lovely architecture of The Inn and of Forest Hills Gardens, we engaged only the very best talent available. No half way measure would produce the desired result in the interior rehabilitation of The Inn. Accordingly, we turned to Mrs. Dorothy Draper — surely the foremost woman decorator of hotels in America today.

Mrs. Draper has produced some delightful plans for the complete redoing of the interior of The Inn. She has caught and held the old English flavor of the building yet with bold modern color and fabrics will add lightness and gaiety and new comfort to the public rooms and private suites. Her sketches are on view at The Inn and our friends and neighbors are invited to drop in and examine them.
