QUEENS BOROUGH NEEDS

Official Addresses The Forest Hills Association— Officers Elected

The regrettable illness and consequent inability of Borough President Connolly to be present at the mass meeting called for Public School 3 on Friday evening, Feb. 2, under the auspices of the Forest Hills Association, resulted in a smaller attendance than would otherwise have been the case. Mr. Connolly, however, sent a worthy representative in the person of T. Powell, head of the topographical department in the borough. Mr. Powell greatly interested the audience with his intimate knowledge of the history of this community; and also with his equally intimate knowledge of its present needs. The first part of Mr. Powell's address was given to a consideration of the three major needs along local lines that are pressing for settlement: the streets, the sewers, and the projected boulevard extension. Strenuous efforts are being put forth by the Forest Hills Association to have the city take over the streets in order that there may come such a reconditioning of the streets as is pressingly necessary; and an early settlement of the matter in order that we may be in line for our appropriation for such work early in the spring. It is confidently anticipated that this matter will be satisfactorily settled in the near future.

Work has already been started on the grading of the boulevard, so that the first unit of the work, up to Woodhaven Avenue will be finished in a short while, and the second unit within which Forest Hills comes will be finished some time before the close of the present summer. The completion of the boulevard, all other matters being satisfactorily arranged, can be accomplished within about eighteen months. The matter of the subway going through Forest Hills, is left in abeyance until Governor Smith has appointed his new transit commission; though there is an effort being put forth to get this done while the work of the boulevard is going forward.

The second part of Mr. Powell's address was an illustrated plea, by slides and moving pictures, for the acquisition of park sites throughout the borough while these sites are available, and before the land becomes too valuable for the city to purchase. Many historic buildings were shown in settings of real charm and beauty, in various parts of the borough, which if purchased by the city for parks, would ensure their preservation, not only as historic reminders, but also as welcome breathing places for the future millions that the years will bring to Queens.

Officers elected by the association are as follows: Virgil W. Miller, president; Mrs. J. Elmer Kline and E. Pearce, vice-presidents; Henry Peelle, secretary; Frank Hargreave, treasurer; William C. Mayer, chairman of civics; W. Cuddeback, chairman of entertainment; Rev. Albert Sheppard, chairman of publicity, and F. Neumer, chairman of membership.

AUDUBON LECTURE POPULAR

Forest Hills Theatre Filled to Hear Mr. Finley's Address and to See the Pictures

February 3 was the date of a gala night for the Forest Hills Gardens Audubon Society. The new officers had engaged the entire Forest Hills Theatre and brought to the residents of the village a very fine evening's entertainment with the emphasis put upon birds. Under the leadership of Mrs. Edgar D. Sealy, chaperone, a group of young women in evening gowns, wearing violet corsage bouquets, the gifts of John B. Reimer, president of the society, their foreheads bound with blue ribbons on which were seen the gold letters "Audubon," ushered the people to their seats. The young women ushering were: Helena Ketcham, Nancy Luce, Lolita Cordon, Marguerite Halloran, Alma Guyon, Mrs. A. K. Hanks, Nancy Woodard, Rita Montague, Florence Longcope, Helen Ward, Cicely Kershaw, Doris Speir, and Dorothy Reimer.

After making elaborate preparations for the evening and seeing that the house was sold out, Mr. Reimer was ill and unable to be present. Miss Beatrice Wilson, vice-president, introduced the speaker of the evening, William L. Finley, field agent for the National Association of Audubon Societies, whose subject was "Ramblings of a Naturalist from the Gulf Stream to the Roof of the Rockies." With perfectly beautiful moving pictures to illustrate his talk, he spoke of the birds at tide line, gulls, crabs, sand pipers; then he talked of the birds and bears of the Yosemite. Cruising through the southern waters, he told tales of gulls, turtles, mocking birds, terns, herons and aigrettes. After describing the life of the pelicans, he spoke of big game, deer, moose and elk. The final intimate picture was of bird and animal friends, porcupine, owl, opossum and the beloved pet dog, "Peter."

Mr. Reimer wishes to thank all who made the evening one of signal success, particularly the patrons, the chaperone and the ushers. With the rest of the community, he feels grateful to the Forest Hills Theatre for showing very high grade pictures before and after the bird lecture.

It is impossible to make a financial statement because the returns from all tickets have not been made to the treasurer. The request is made that checks for used tickets and for the dues ($1 per year) be mailed to Speir Whitaker, Wendover Road.

MUSICIANS WANTED

There is a desire on the part of a number of people here to form an amateur orchestra. It is the plan to bring together those who play the violin, cello, viola, the piano and other instruments, and in this way to informally organize and to enjoy playing together one evening a week. All who are interested please get in touch with Herbert Padelinetti, 16 Cranford Street, Boulevard 6192.

STANDARD BEING IMPROVED

In an address before the General Federation of Women's Clubs last summer, Will H. Hays closed with these words:

"The motion picture industry accepts the challenge in the demand of the American people for a higher quality of art and interest in their entertainment. The industry accepts the challenge in the demand of American youth that its pictures shall give the right kind of entertainment and instruction.

"We accept the challenge in the righteous demand of the American mother that the entertainment and amusement of that youth shall be worthy of its value as a most potent factor in the country's future.

"We accept our full responsibility. It is a service, and 'service is the supreme commitment of life.' It is a service which needs the very best from all, and I have great faith in its fulfillment."

With the Forest Hills Theatre maintaining a high standard, backed by the people of the community, the words of the man who is nationally responsible for the standards of this form of entertainment are appropriately printed in the BULLETIN.

THANKS FOR HOSPITALITY

The following letter was received from one of the students attending the Conference of Oriental Students held in the Church-in-the-Gardens two weeks ago:

Editor FOREST HILLS BULLETIN:

Forest Hills is, indeed, the most unique and fitting place to hold the "Conference of a few Oriental Christian students," who are attempting to meet world problems with peaceful means. The entire community and surroundings are calm, restful and sober, with broad world-outlook, harmonizing perfectly with the spirit and purpose of the conference. We delegates have been deeply touched by the broad-mindedness, brotherly love, and sympathy of the people of Forest Hills, and believe that the ultimate way of ensuring peace of the world is, not the navy or army, but the Law of Love and the Law of Sacrifice. "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

GEORGE K. LEE, CANTON, CHINA.

GARDENS PLAYERS APPEARTwo-Night Stand at the Kew Gardens Club a Decided Success.

The Gardens Players presented their first subscription bill of the season at the Kew Gardens Country Club on the evenings of Feb. 8 and 9, under the able direction of Walter Hartwig.

Each play had its especial charm, particularly apparent on the second evening, for reasons that will be explained. "Daggers and Diamonds," a travesty by Katherine Prescott Mosely, was the curtain-raiser. Ordway Tead's performance as a blasé Russian prince was excellent; and he made his highness very good to look upon. Jane Gaeta as Sophie, a rather confused idealist, was effective, while Kate Adams, as Madame Rosita, the prince's housekeeper, and Elton Clark, as Oliver, the footman, completed a distinctly attractive cast. The setting was adequate, the costumes charming, and the pleasing voices of all four actors were noticeable.

"The Clock," a tragedy by Robert Courtney, took place in a lonely farmhouse. The setting was good, and the whole play had the compactness of a well-painted picture. Edward Swazey, as a man struck by lightning, was gruesomely effective, his few gestures being highly impressive. Benton, his youngest brother, played by Melville Greig, was an appealing figure in his goodness of heart and terror. Blanche Lopez gave an exceedingly arresting performance as Lida, the sister. Her future roles will be watched with interest. Frederick Smith, as Roger, the second brother, driven by dullness to contemplated fratricide, gave one of the best interpretations of his career among the Players.

"A Valuable Rival," by Neil F. Grant, returned to comedy and was an enjoyable bonne bouche to finish the evening. Laid in Scotland, it derived much lustre from the delicious Scotch burr of Robert Whyte, who played Alexander Jameson, an enigmatic newspaper owner. Grace Marren, his daughter Maggie, was pretty and appealing, and as wax in her father's hands. William Bain, the young newspaper rival, was sympathetically portrayed by William Grupe.

Of the eleven actors participating, only Mr. Smith and Mr. Swazey had appeared before with The Players, and it is gratifying to find so much excellent new material among the membership.

Through unforeseen difficulties with the stage, it was not possible for The Players to have a dress rehearsal at Kew. Therefore, whatever discrepancies were noticeable on the first night came from this fact, and were obviated the second evening, when an exceptionally good performance was given.

A number of Forest Hills residents are relieving themselves of the coal problem by installing oil burners and the reports are entirely satisfactory. Such installation brings an absence of dirt, dust and the furnace man and there is no worry about fuel, for an ample supply is available.

George C. LeBlanc, former auditor of the Sage Foundation Homes Company, has taken the agency of the Baker burner, of which some installations have been made locally. The installation can be made in a short time without interfering with the furnace or with the heat of the house to any extent.

PERSONAL REMINISCENCES

Glimpses of English Authors Given by Hamlin Garland at Women's Club.

In an address on "Personal Reminiscences of Famous English Authors," given before the Women's Club on Feb. 5, Hamlin Garland, author of many books dealing vividly and realistically with the middle and far west, told of intimate and delightful visits in England last summer with Sir James Barrie, Rudyard Kipling, Maurice Hewlett, Bernard Shaw and Joseph Conrad. After receiving the Pulitzer prize for "A Daughter of the Middle Border," Mr. Garland and his wife and two daughters spent six months last year in London, near Kensington Gardens. It was a personal, intimate story, charmingly told, relating the facts that Conrad, of sea stories fame, lives far from the water; that Maurice Hewlett has had to give up his fine home, due to war taxes, and now lives most simply; that Kipling's home and gardens are ideal, and that Bernard Shaw writes while walking. Sir James Barrie was not only entertained by the Garlands, but also entertained them, as was also true of the other authors.

The new members elected are Mrs. W. G. Godfrey and Mrs. Elmer J. Finley.

Mrs. Lawrence F. Abbott reported for the motion picture committee, praising the work of the Motion Picture Commission, at the workshop of which Mrs. Abbott and a number of the members made a visit. The club voted to send a protest to the authorities at Albany against the removal of the Motion Picture Commission.

Mrs. Virgil W. Miller reported for the civic committee that a traffic sign at Greenway North and Ascan Avenue had been run over, showing the need of the sign. Another will be placed there, and also one at Greenway South and Ascan Avenue. An automatic telephone has been placed in the police booth. The work of Policeman Boller has been praised by the committee to Commissioner Enright.

Mrs. Augustine J. Wilson, chairman of the philanthropic chapter, told of the excellent scholastic record of the club's scholarship boy at Newtown High School. Fifty yards of gingham have been purchased, 25 aprons have been made, and bibs are being made for the children of the Jamaica Day Nursery. Mrs. Wilson asked for the names of any special cases in Queens needing help.

Mrs. Anna C. Boyd reported a meeting of the Long Island Council of Women's Clubs. The council adopted three resolutions, which were passed by the Women's Club. These were: (1) To support the bill to give Congress the power to make child-labor laws; (2) to support legislation to make the Eighteenth Amendment effective, and (3) to oppose the reappearance of Arbuckle as a motion picture actor.

Mrs. Edward H. Mays proposed a revision of the constitution and by-laws. These will be voted on at the next meeting.

Mrs. Edna Stoll Sauer sang a group of songs charmingly.

"LITERARY FADS" DESCRIBED

In speaking before the current readings chapter of the Women's Club on last Tuesday afternoon, Arthur Guiterman, the poet, showed that the book buying public and the book reading public are two different entities and that the reviewers make the book. "Literary Fads" was the subject and Mr. Guiterman traced the tale of these fads from the days of the Greek dramatists down through the Elizabethan period to the present time. Of the present day fads, he enumerated the sword and cloak school, typified in the "Prisoner of Zenda," the historical novels, animal stories, American realism and Russian realism. The speaker traced the free verse fad back to the King James version of the Bible. He paid his respects to the fad of unintelligibility and said that he believes all literary effort should be accepted on its own merit.

When requested to do so, Mr. Guiterman read from his own poems, "Art of Export," "Education," "Indian Fairies," "Important Business" and "Hills."

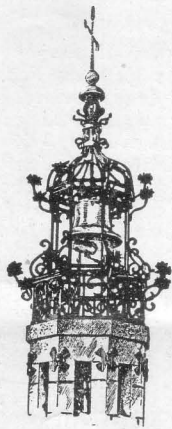

The meeting was held at the spacious and beautiful home of Mrs. Alden H. Vose, 97 Continental Avenue, with Mrs. M. J. Dannatt, assistant hostess.
